ALEX RIZO VICE PRESIDENT OF SALES

As Vice President of Sales, Alex Rizo is one of the pivotal members of the Intrepid Powerboats leadership team. He administers all sales team operations and oversees Intrepid's Customer Care Program at the company's facility in Dania Beach, Florida. However, his contributions to the company extend beyond a singular title.

Since the beginning of his time at Intrepid, Alex's priority has always been the happiness and satisfaction of our customers. To ensure the smoothest experience possible, he maintains open communication with them from the first inquiry and sale, throughout the production process, and even beyond final delivery. His dedication to ensuring the highest level of customer satisfaction is a big part of why there are so many enthusiastic members of Intrepid Nation. This has also allowed him to form personal relationships with owners which has played a principal part in Intrepid's constant innovation, as many of the customer insights and requests are what continue to shape improvements and new model development.

Alex's connection to our customers began long before he joined our team. He previously worked for over three decades at a marine electronics company which supplied many of the electronics used in our boats. During this time, he regularly interacted with Intrepid customers and team members, which allowed for a seamless transition.

Beyond his life at work, Alex has been married for over 30 years and is a father of two daughters who are making their way into careers in healthcare. His passions include boating, automobile racing, and traveling the world to experience new places and cultures.
